

OCTOBER MEETING, 2013

*The University of Michigan
Ann Arbor
October 18, 2013*

The regents met at 3:08 p.m. in the Harding Mott University Center on the campus of the University of Michigan-Flint. Present were President Coleman and Regents Bernstein, Darlow, Diggs, Newman, and Richner. Regent White participated via conference call, and Regents Deitch and Ilitch were absent. Also present were Vice President and Secretary Churchill, Vice President Forrest, Vice President Harper, Chancellor Little, Vice President Lynch, Vice President May, Chancellor Person, Executive Vice President Pescovitz, Provost Pollack, Vice President Rudgers, Executive Vice President Slottow, and Vice President Wilbanks.

Call to Order and President's Opening Remarks

President Coleman welcomed those present to her last meeting at UM-Flint, and she expressed her appreciation for the services the campus provides, particularly those provided to military veterans. She said, "Student veterans come to higher education with unique and sometimes challenging needs, and this campus goes above and beyond in addressing those issues." She thanked Chancellor Ruth Person for her leadership, and the countless contributions from faculty, staff and students.

She continued, noting that the University will soon kick off the most ambitious fundraising effort in its history. Increasing support for students is a priority, and donors will be asked to contribute to scholarships and fellowships at all levels of study. On November 8, the overall goal for the campaign, Victors for Michigan, will be announced. She thanked Jeff Mackie-Mason, dean of the School of Information, and his wife, Janet Netz, who recently pledged a $2.5 million gift for the School of Information.

President Coleman continued, noting that a UM alumnus, Professor Robert Shiller, was one of three winners of the Nobel Prize in economics. He teaches at Yale University and is a 1967 graduate of the College of LSA, with a bachelor's degree in economics. She then turned to Regent Newman for an announcement.

Regent Newman read the following statement:

"In January of this year the Board of Regents took time out from its regular meeting schedule to have a strategic planning session for the first time in many years. It was an incredibly valuable experience and we plan to that again in January in place of the regularly scheduled board meeting. This informal strategic session will take place in New York City, January 16-17, 2014.

This is a critical time in the history of the university. We are in the midst of the search for our next president, someone who will lead the university into its third century and by the time we gather in January, we will have launched the most ambitious fundraising campaign ever for this university. The strategic session will allow us to focus on the future of the university and its important place in higher education for our state, our region and the nation.

We will meet with several experts in higher education and academic medical centers who are based on the east coast. Among them are: Bill Bowen, president emeritus, Princeton University, and former president of the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation; Peter Salovay, president, Yale University; Ed Miller, retired EVPMA, Johns Hopkins Medicine; Mike Johns retired EVPMA at Emory University.

Additionally, we will have the opportunity to meet with friends of the university and donors in a state that is home to more than 26,000 UM alumni and 2100 current UM students, our second largest contingent of alumni and students outside Michigan. Steve Ross, who already has been so incredibly generous to this university with both his time and his money, has agreed to host a donor event while we are in New York. We look forward to these important discussions about the future direction of higher education and academic medical centers and we will resume our regular schedule of meetings in Ann Arbor, February 20, 2014.

Regent Newman continued: "Normally the Board of Regents discusses the compensation for the President, at our September meeting. This year we would like to do it at the October meeting, and talk about some of your accomplishments as well. President Coleman led a year of fantastic forward momentum at the university.

In addition to her recent announcement that she and Ken are giving $1 million to Michigan for student international experiences, she also secured historic major gifts from leadership donors. This year alone we announced Helen Zell's $50 million gift for graduate creative writing; Penny and Roe Stamps $40 million gift for the School of Art and Design; Charlie Munger's $110 million for graduate housing and fellowships, and of course Steve Ross' $200 million donation for the Ross School of Business and for Athletics.

Importantly, President Coleman has also led the university in challenging important milestones in affordability, financial aid, and business efficiency. FY14 tuition was increased only 1.1% for in-state undergraduates, the smallest increase since 1985. In the FY14 budget, need based financial aid for undergraduates was increased by 13.7% marking the 8th time in the past nine years that aid has increased by at least 10%. The FY14 budget also decreased by $500,000 the amount of loans that is part of a typical financial aid package for many in-state students. The university replaced some loans with grants, which do not need to be repaid. Additionally, UM will meet the full demonstrated need for twice as many out-of-state students through a new financial aid program launched last year. Among the nations major public research universities, the UM provides the third highest amount of institutional aid to students. The combination of a small tuition increase and a significant boost in financial aid means the net cost of attendance for undergraduate student with financial need will not increase and in some cases it will decrease. Last year UM helped in-state students by packaging more than $110 million in grants and scholarships alone. None of that money has to be re-paid.

President Coleman has helped us shape the next fundraising campaign as well putting student support as the number one priority for the Victors for Michigan Campaign that will launch on November 8. Part of what makes this all possible is the university's long-term commitment to cost containment and reallocating resources to the highest priorities, which goes back the start of President Coleman's tenure as president.

Since 2004 the University has trimmed or reallocated $265 million in recurring expenses in the general fund, and there is an ongoing commitment to identify additional $120 million in savings by 2017. The FY14 budget contains more than $24 million in reductions or reallocations including further steps in the consolidation of information technology services, expanding staffing efficiencies across campus and continued implementation of energy efficiency initiatives.

Because of this and to show our appreciation to Mary Sue Coleman for what she has done, the Board of Regents would like to give her a bonus this year, her last year as President, of $100,000 and take it from non-general fund resources. We hope you will accept it with our deepest appreciation for everything you have done."

President Coleman thanked Regent Newman and the board, and said that she appreciates all they have done to keep the university in good shape. She then introduced Jon Davidson, director of admissions, for a presentation on the growth of the UM-Flint Campus.

Presentation: The Globally Engaged Student

John Davidson, admissions director, UM-Flint focused on enrollment growth over the last seven years, since student housing became available in 2008. Enrollment has increased over 25% in many different segments since that time. Many enrollment opportunities continue to exist for the UM-Flint Campus including scalability, value, a strong transfer population and geographic diversification. Enrollment of veterans and international students has grown 80.7%, and 369% respectively, since 2007. New student housing opportunities in the city of Flint have also helped grow enrollment.
