ACTION REQUEST: Approval to Revise the Academic Calendar for 2006-2007

This academic year, beginning with Winter 2007, the University of Michigan-Flint has implemented standardized course times. This change promotes fuller utilization of our classrooms and decreases the current overlap of class times that makes it difficult for students to take multiple classes on the same day. The adoption of a standardized class time grid necessitates adding one day to the final examination period in the Winter 2007 Term. Not adding the day would result in significant overlap of final examinations. We are, therefore, requesting a revision to our 2006-2007 academic calendar to add one day, Wednesday, May 2, 2007, to the final examination schedule of our Winter 2007 Term. This proposed revision has been approved by the deans and all appropriate governing faculty committee structures of the University of Michigan-Flint.
